The Editor's note book

Sixty years young and still yet to grow. A cursory examination of many sixty year olds could spell interesting narrations. Some may be disappointments of what should have been done, the others could brag about the achievements thus far, and may be the others could say, sixty is a new forty. Life starts now. But in whatever way you would love to look at it, ours is simply a case of age just being a number. As Nansana, our contribution to the cause, with few years to clocking a decade, cannot be left to naysayers. We should showcase our brand and efforts, backed up with results and work plans, of what this club is all about. Well, this Lubiji times issue is mandated to do just that.

A Lioness Never Dies

From the Rotary Club of Nansana, we shall always be mindful of the needs of others. The tutorship you offered to our club, on several visits, both official and through family colleagues in our club, especially Rtn Richard Were, will always be a part of us.

A Lioness never dies. We live with you always. Till we meet again.

RIP dear Rtn Margaret.

The president's wise words

Dear friends in service, welcome to our February issue of Lubiji Times. The only bulletin in the land that gives you a hint of what Nansana is made of. The Rotary year is fast running to the end, and as we gauge ourselves for the final stretch, we cannot undo our efforts of months prior. Ours is to keep the candle blowing, until we hand over the button to the next runner. And since the passing of the button is crucial to whether we shall attain the gold medal, our structures and plans must hence be maintained.

In a bigger milestone to the Rotary fraternity in Uganda, we made 60 many years of service. As Nansana, we want to be part of the bandwagon that has been a key party in this big service to humanity, especially is the eight or so years of our existence. And with this, on considering that our membership has fully grown, and retention levels are on the high, we cannot afford to disappoint our admirers, on the better steps that we can take up in the coming years.

Am happy, that a few of our members shall be part of the District service team. That signifies that our efforts albeit being an upcountry club, have been recognized. Yes, like the old adage goes, "even in the dark, a star will shine".

Nansana shall continue shining.

Buddy group Gombe hosts February

The story behind having buddy groups lead in organizing fellowships, must be credited to the Club Administration directorate. And wow, it has done wonders.

Gombe buddy group has had its second time in the rotary year to lead the fellowships structure, and they haven't disappointed. From, inviting wonderful guest speakers, to keeping the house guessing on what next move they would unleash in the next fellowship, the efforts have been worth while. Not only has it increased the overall participation of each member of the group, members, especially the newly inducted have come to appreciate that at Nansana, everyone is welcome to take a lead role at a fellowship. We can't wait to have you again Gombe buddy group.

Prof. Nuwagaba talks economy

In yet another series of wonderful guest speakers, this month, thanks to Gombe buddy group, we managed to lure a big fish, in the economics field in this country, to the outskirts of the city, and into Nansana. Yes, we had Prof. Augustus Nuwagaba, dissecting to us, what the economic situation the country is facing, implies to the lives we live and definitely to our efforts of serving humanity. Here is a man who talks economics and makes it look like history to the non-economics people. We hope the talk helped us digest on how best we can leverage the resources at our disposal and the knowledge that Rotary experiences provide, to be able to walk out on top of the situation. We surely have to be on top of the economical situation to be able to prosper our Rotary projects.

Rotary leaders in green earth initiative

In the famous western side of the country, lies a beautiful town with a beautiful name. Fortportal.

Known for its coolness and beautiful scenery of the mountains of the moon, its attraction of many

A beautiful scenery of what nature should be tourists, far and near, cannot be left underestimated. It was named after the colonial masters, with the leadership of Sir Gerald Portal, whose statue stands tall, to welcome the visitors. And when DGE Ken Mugisha with the incoming district officials chose the place for their workplan workshop and training, the choice was never a regret. At the luxurious Kaalya Courts, the delegates, dialogued on the plans for the next year, with a major theme of having the communities go green, thus the Go green initiative.

This involves planting as many trees as possible to protect the environment that has been deluded by the myopic persons, that want to leave a rough future for generations to come. Rotary District 9211 shall put a plug to those efforts, by implementing the initiative as part of the other community benefiting projects, that Rotarians are fond of.

It was named after the colonial masters, with the leadership of Sir Gerald Portal, whose statue stands tall, to welcome the visitors.

Star Rotarian-PP Stephen Matovu

As Rotary made sixty years in the country, some personalities really went beyond service to be apart of the historical achievements of this great voluntary service organization.

We all in our capacities, stand out, considering the busy schedules that our vocations call for. But yet again, aren't we the ones who swore to abide by the rules of engagement on our induction day? Well, then. But this month's accolade will go to our very on past president, Stephen Matovu (Dr). His efforts in the coordination of the building project for the blood bank, goes with a mention. The obvious reason that the Rotary blood bank project team deemed it fitting to award the man, for a job well done. In his own words, Matovu acknowledges the rationale to be part of the driving team to have this project come this far, but doesn't rule out the challenges it comes with.

Just for laughs—Kamoga irritated by relaxing

One day, Kamoga, an illiterate, was enjoying the sun at Lido beach.... A lady came and asked him, are u relaxing?? "No I am Kamoga", he replied. Another guy came and asked the same question. He answered "No, no, me am Kamoga."

A third person came and asked the same question. Angrily, he left the place. Whilst walking he saw another guy lying in the sun. Kamoga walked to him and asked: "are u relaxing?" The guy being more educated answered "Yes, I am relaxing." Kamoga slapped him in his face and said, "Stupid idiot, everyone is looking for u and u are sitting over here."
